

Sven the Cactus presents...

Word Adventures

The word of the week is:

a small seedless plant that often grows in moist and shady places.

Moss belongs to a group of plant known as the bryophytes. The pronunciation of bryophytes is brai·uh·fites.

Mosses range from too small to see to more than 40 inches (1 meter) long. They grow close together in thick mats. Many types of moss form velvety green carpets on forest floors and can grow on trees and rocks.
